

SHEERLUXE

Growing up with family in the south of France, I loved the glamour of Saint-Tropez and Cannes. But over time, it's the quieter spots, like Saint-Paul de Vence, Saint-Raphaël, Grasse and Théoule-sur-Mer that have captured my heart. This season, I revisited these lesser-known spots – although I couldn't skip a stylish stop in Monaco to visit the Chanel exhibition and Jacquemus beach pop-up. Living in the US has made me realise how close everything really is in France. Each town is just a scenic drive apart.

Where To Stay

Toile Blanche, Saint-Paul de Vence: This is a family-run retreat set between olive trees and lavender fields. With just a handful of suites and an open-air gallery for breezy terrace dinners, Toile Blanche is where you can really slow down and immerse yourself in the Provençal pace of life.

Toile Blanche

Toile Blanche

Where To Eat & Drink

La Guinguette de Toile Blanche, Saint-Paul de Vence: For lunch or dinner under twinkling lights, this is the place to enjoy those Provençal flavours without the rush. It's always joyful and relaxed.